

Panther 180

Activities for the Evaluation of Teaching: A guide to using Panther 180 for Adjunct Faculty.

What is Panther 180 and why am I being asked to use it?

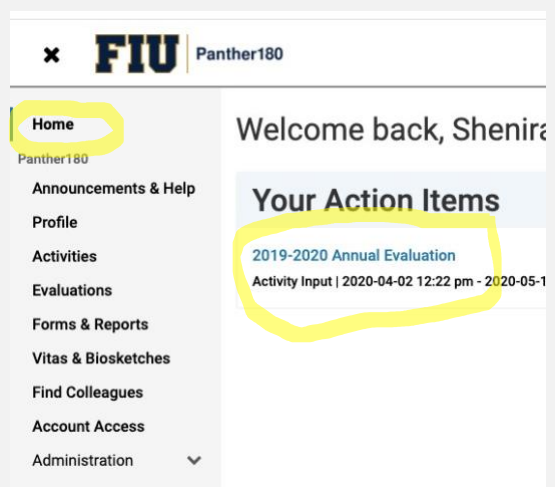

Panther 180 (P180) serves FIU as a repository of information that units may use in the annual review process.

The Activities for the Evaluation of Classroom Teaching section was created so you will have space to report the information you have gathered as a part of your department's new teaching evaluation protocols. You can access it in your Home page in Panther 180 (panther180.fiu.edu) by clicking on the link to your annual evaluation (see image on the right).

Note: Adjunct faculty may not see the full navigational menu seen in the image on the right.

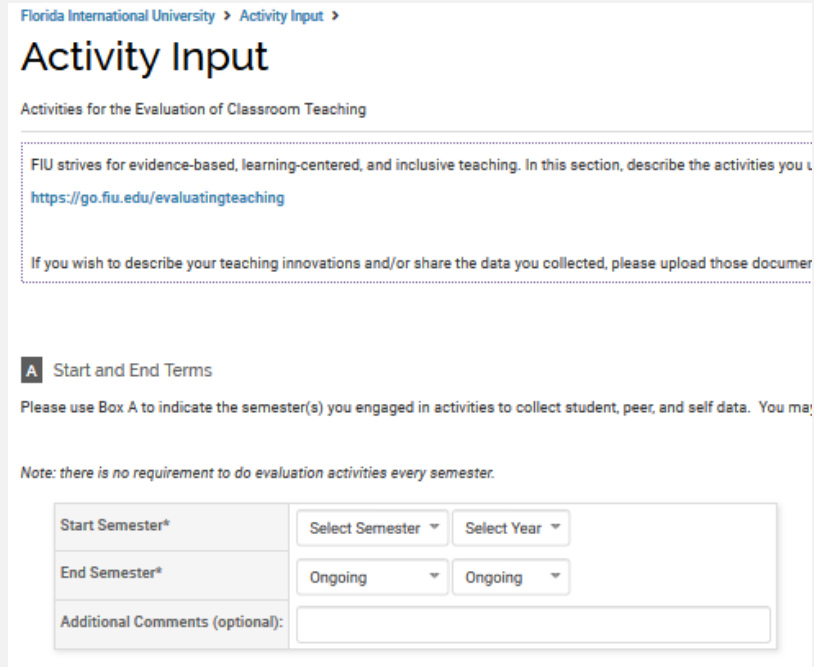

Will I need to complete the Annual Evaluation section, and if so, how often?

If your department has a teaching evaluation plan already in place, you may continue to use that process. Otherwise, you will need to report on information about teaching gathered from student, peer, and self. After the first three years as an adjunct at FIU, you will be evaluated every third year.

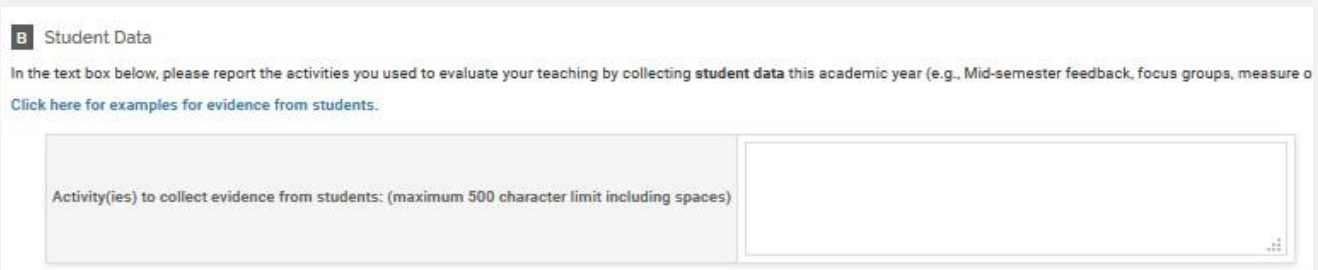

Completing the sections

The Activities for the Evaluation of Classroom Teaching section contains five sections, Boxes A-F. Box A includes fields to Select Semester and Year. This is so that the CV creation function in Panther 180 can correctly sequence the information in the overall report. The field allows you to select multiple semesters if you engaged in evaluation activities throughout the year but it is important to note that you are not required to collect data every semester or from every class.

Boxes B-D can be used to describe the activities you engaged in to collect data/information about your teaching from students (Box B), peers (Box C), and self (Box D). Box B is shown as an example below. Your entries in Boxes B-D should be concise, as each text box allows for a maximum of 500 characters (including spaces). You can view examples of completed entries by clicking the link provided above each text box.

Panther 180

Activities for the Evaluation of Teaching:
A guide to using Panther 180 for Adjunct Faculty.

Do I need to complete the Teaching Narrative section?

At the end of the academic year, you can use Box E (see below) to submit a narrative of how you used the data/information you collected to inform your teaching practice. This is optional as some departments have determined different methods of sharing a teaching narrative or do not require one. If you would like to upload data you collected, you can use Box F to do so.

E Teaching Narrative (optional)
This is a space to share how your evaluation efforts have informed your teaching practice. You may upload your narrative here or submit one to your chair in the method determined by your department.

Teaching Narrative (maximum 1500 character limit equaling approximately 750 words)

A screenshot of a web form for submitting a teaching narrative. It features a title 'E Teaching Narrative (optional)', a descriptive subtitle, and a large text input area with a character limit of 1500 characters (approximately 750 words).

How can I get help?

For help completing this or any of the teaching sections in Panther 180, please feel free to contact Shenira Perez (sheperez@fiu.edu) or Leanne Wells (lwells@fiu.edu) at the Center for the Advancement of Teaching.

The Center is also pleased to announce that we are offering Adjunct Faculty Teaching Evaluation Information Sessions (including evenings and weekends). Please use this link to register

In these open labs you can ask questions, get feedback, or get help with

- Determining what questions you may have about teaching strategies, student learning or behaviors, or learning environments (including modalities)
- Deciding on what data would be most informative
- Locating useful evaluation tools
- Identifying a peer or designing a peer collaboration
- Exploring and interpreting data
- Summarizing/reporting on efforts to evaluate teaching

If you would like to explore a variety of activities for collecting data/information about your teaching, please see your department's Evaluating Teaching Guidelines or visit Data Sources on the CAT ET resources page.

